Scrivener

by LiteratureandLatte.Com

The screenshot shows the homepage of Literature and Latte. At the top is the logo and a navigation menu with links for Home, Products, Forum, Blog, Support, Links, About Us, and Contact. Below the menu is a secondary navigation bar with links for Video Tutorials, Published Authors, Who Uses Scrivener?, Case Studies, and Books on Scrivener. The main content area features the Scrivener logo, the text "Scrivener for Microsoft Windows", and buttons for "Windows 10 Ready" and "Show Mac OS X Version". To the right, there are links for "Free Trial", "Buy Now $40* USD", and "Download for Windows". Below this is a "What is Scrivener?" link and a "Features" link. The central image is a 3D rendering of the Scrivener software interface, showing a document editor, a sidebar with a file browser, and a corkboard with various notes and images. Below the image is a quote: "The biggest software advance for writers since the word processor." —Michael Marshall Smith. At the bottom, there are three buttons: "Watch Video Tutorials" with a video icon, "Read Testimonials" with a speech bubble icon, and "Explore Case Studies" with a group of people icon.

- Scrivener is a powerful content-generation tool for writers that allows you to concentrate on composing and structuring long and difficult documents. While it gives you complete control of the formatting, its focus is on helping you get to the end of that awkward first draft.

HemingwayApp.com

by hemingwayapp.com

Hemingway App makes your writing bold and clear.

The app highlights long, complex sentences and common errors; if you see a yellow sentence, shorten or split it. If you see a red highlight, your sentence is so dense and complicated that your readers will get lost trying to follow its meandering, splitting logic — try editing this sentence to remove the red.

You can utilize a shorter word in place of a purple one. Mouse over it for hints.

Adverbs are helpfully shown in blue. Get rid of them and pick verbs with force instead.

Phrases in green have been marked to show passive voice.

You can format your text with the toolbar.

Paste in something you're working on and edit away. Or, click the Write button to compose something new.

- The Hemingway Editor highlights common problems that can get in the way of clear writing:
- Complex words or phrases
- Extra-long sentences
- Long sentences
- Too many adverbs
- Too many instances of passive voice
- It colour codes each potential error type, so you can address them one at a time. $9.99

2	Excel uses standard "PEMDAS" order of operations for arithmetic
3	"Parentheses, Exponents, Multiplication and Division, and Addition and Subtraction"
4
5	Parentheses	"(6-3)"
6	Exponents - use caret	"^"	(for example, "six squared" is "6^2";
7	Multiplication - use asterisk	"*"	"square root of six" is "6^(.5)")
8	Division - use slash	"/"
9	Addition	"+"
10	Subtraction	"-"
11
12	Assume we want (6-3)(4+2) = 18
13	=6-3*4+2

Why lawyers will love iOS 10

iOS 10 Yesterday morning during the Keynote Address that kicked off Apple's WWDC developer conference, Apple announced new versions of the operating systems for the iPhone/iPad, Mac, Apple Watch and Apple TV, all of which will be released in just a few months this Fall. The updates to watchOS look really incredible, but I want to take some more time to understand them before I write about them. Today, I'm focusing on what is new in iOS 10. There was not a major focus on productivity features (which are typically most useful for lawyers), but there are lots of updates that make the entire iPhone/iPad more enjoyable to use, which will make it easier to get work done with these devices. And when the work day is over and you can focus on your personal life, great new features such as the Memories button in the Photos app will make iOS devices much more delightful. This looks to be a great update. Here are the key features that jumped out at me.

iPad split-view

I'll start with the iPad because there was only one iPad-only feature showed off yesterday, but it is a nice one, especially for attorneys who use the larger 12.9" iPad Pro. Safari in iOS 10 will support a split-view mode, so that you can view two web pages at the same time, one on the left and one on the right. You can enter text in a browser on the left while you look up information on the right. You can copy from one website and paste into another website.

That's not the only split-view improvement for the iPad. Apple didn't demo the feature yesterday, but Apple briefly showed a slide listing other new features by title, and one of them was side-by-side mail composing on the iPad. I hope this means that you will be able to draft an email on one half of the screen while you look at a different email on the other half of the screen. That would be really useful.
